Question 11: In the ordinary course of business, each year the UAW retains more than 125 law firms, located in various parts of the United States. These law firms represent the UAW and its active and retired membership in a variety of legal disputes with employers and others. The UAW's expenses for legal fees for these outside firms are reported on the UAW's LM-2 and ordinarily exceed $3 million annually. That figure represents the amount paid in the aggregate to all of these outside law firms. Each individual firm receives only a small portion of that amount, with the actual amount paid to each firm varying considerably from year to year depending on the extent and nature of the work performed by such firm.

My husband, Jordan Rossen, is employed as an attorney at one of the law firms that provides representation to the UAW. The name of the firm is Meyer, Suozzi, English & Klein. The UAW was a well-established client of the firm before my husband joined the firm. The UAW's use of the firm is entirely in the ordinary course of business.

Question 12. My husband, Jordan Rossen, is employed as an attorney in the firm described in Question 11. His annual income from the firm was approximately $75,000.00 in 2002. The firm has many clients other than the UAW and only a portion of this income is attributable to work performed on behalf of the UAW.
